Racetrack lawsuit against Plymouth dismissed

Northville Downs may have put the cart before the horse with the purchase of land in Plymouth Township before securing final zoning approval for a new racetrack, according to a court decision last week.
U.S. District Court Judge Brandy McMillion last week dismissed a lawsuit filed by Northville Downs in February 2024, claiming township demands “amounted to extortion” of millions of dollars in exchange for approval of a proposed harness racing facility. The lawsuit was filed within weeks of the January 2024 township board decision to end negotiations with Northville Downs.
Owners of the last operating harness racetrack in the state planned to move the facility from the historic location in downtown Northville to a 128-acre parcel at Five Mile and Ridge roads in Plymouth Township. The Northville racetrack site was sold to a developer and construction of a massive housing and retail project is under way in that community.

Terms of negotiations with the track owners included a $500,000 annual payment to Plymouth Township and use of the track facility grounds for community events and youth soccer, among other gatherings.

The developer characterized those demands as “extortion” in court filings. The judge, however, disagreed and ruled that Northville Downs had no protected property interest as final approval for the new track was never granted by township officials.
“The Court finds that (Northville Downs) may have put the cart before the horse and is not entitled to relief,” McMillion wrote in the 23-page opinion.
McMillion also agreed that the township was within the law to exercise provisions of local zoning ordinances and that the negotiation for a township benefit from the track project was within the township Planned Unit Development practices, which allow flexibility in exchange for public benefits.

While the federal claims were dismissed “with prejudice” prohibiting any refile, McMillion did not rule on other state-level claims filed by Northville Downs. In those documents, the developer claims violations of the Michigan Zoning Enabling Act and promissory estoppel—alleging harm due to relying on a broken promise. Those claims can be pursued in state court.
Northville Downs has 30 days in which to appeal the federal decision.

The Court finds that (Northville Downs) may have put the cart before the horse and is not entitled to relief.

Members of the Sumpter Township Police Department were on hand during the regular meeting of the township board of trustees to accept the prestigious Michigan Law Enforcement Accreditation Commission (MLEAC) accreditation certificate presented to the township police department by representatives from the Michigan Association of Chiefs of Police.

Sumpter Township Police earn state accreditation

The Sumpter Township Police Department joined an elite group of public safety professionals last week.
Members of the Sumpter Township Police Department were on hand during the regular meeting of the township board of trustees to accept the prestigious Michigan Law Enforcement Accreditation Commission (MLEAC) accreditation certificate.
The accreditation was presented to the township police department by representatives from the Michigan Association of Chiefs of Police (MACP) during the regular meeting of the township board of trustees. “This was an incredibly proud moment for the men and women of our department following a years-long process,” noted Public Safety Director and Chief of Police Eric Luke.
The MACP delegation, including Executive Director Chief Robert Stevenson (Ret.), Deputy Director Chief Ronald L. Wiles, Jr. (Ret.), President Chief Bryan Ergang (Kalamazoo Township Police), and Accreditation Program Director D/Lt. Matt Silverthorn (Ret.) spoke at length about the initial accreditation process and the ongoing work and dedication that departments must undertake to achieve reaccreditation every three years. The officials recognized the Sumpter Township department as one of only 90 police departments in the state to have received accreditation through the MLEAC, before Ergang presented the framed accreditation certificate to Luke.
Achieving accreditation status is a significant professional milestone, police officials said. It acknowledges a departmental implementation of policies and procedures that reflect best practices in law enforcement. “This process has also allowed us to better serve our community, reduce risk and liability for our officers and the department, and strengthen our trust and reputation,” Luke said.
“The MLEAC accreditation program promotes continuous improvement, accountability, and transparency within the law enforcement profession. Our department is committed to upholding these standards as we now begin the process of reaccreditation in three years.”
“We are immensely proud of our department and want to recognize Accreditation Manager Lt. Brian Sefani and Assistant Accreditation Manager Capt. Patrick Gannon for their dedication and outstanding work toward this achievement,” Luke said during the presentation.

Investigation of apparent murder-suicide in Westland continues

An apparent murder suicide last week in Westland remains under police investigation.
Joseph King, 52, and Melissa Hattar, 46, both of Westland were found deceased by police officers responding to a 911 call. According to police reports, the 911 call was received at 7:20 p.m. April 15. During the call, a man told the dispatcher he had just shot his girlfriend and that he was going to shoot himself. While on the call, the dispatcher heard what sounded like a gunshot, police said. The call went silent following the sound.
Westland police officers were immediately dispatched to the home located on the 1400 block of Surrey Heights just west of Palmer and John Hix roads in the city. Believing there to be an emergency situation, officers forced entry into the residence. Upon entering the home, officers located two subjects who appeared to have suffered fatal gunshot wounds. Both King and Hattar resided at the Surrey Heights address.
The Westland Fire Department responded immediately after the scene was secure but was unable to render physical aid as both subjects were deceased upon their arrival, police said.

Canton celebrates Arbor Day at park pavilion reopening

Last week, Canton Township officials celebrated the long-awaited re-opening of three Heritage Park pavilions destroyed by a tornado in August of 2023.

This ribbon cutting and tree planting marked the completion of the final tornado restoration project also included replacement of picnic tables, trash receptacles, numerous trees, as well as repairs to the splash playground. In the spirit of Earth Day, a red maple tree was also planted near the Heritage Park south pavilions, to mark the 55th Anniversary of Earth Day.

“Canton is grateful that all damaged park amenities could be replaced to keep Heritage Park one of the most popular destinations in our parks system,” stated Canton Leisure Services Director Greg Hohenberger. “Our parks play such an essential role in contributing to the overall aesthetics and livability of our community and we look forward to continuing to welcome over 300,000+ visitors to Heritage Park annually.”

Heritage Park, located just west of the Canton Administration Building at 1150 S. Canton Center, Canton, MI 48188, is one of the premier Canton parks, offering numerous amenities, officials said. Visitors to this 105-acre park can enjoy: several playscapes, a splash playground, pavilions, gazebo, large scenic ponds, 1.5 miles of walking paths, an amphitheater, baseball/softball fields, soccer fields, sand volleyball court, fishing pier, and much more.

Romulus mayor praises community impact of Sheetz in city

Romulus Mayor Robert McCraight had some advice for local municipalities looking for economic development: “Welcome Sheetz to your community.”

In a recently published letter to the editor of The Detroit News, McCraight said “actions speak louder than words” in economic development and that he believes in giving credit where credit is due.

“Over the last 20 years, I’ve seen plenty of companies come into communities with big promises only to fall short on follow-through,” he said in his letter, “and Sheetz has absolutely earned it.”

The mayor added that prior to the opening of the Sheetz facility in Romulus last August, the community was dealing with gas stations that “consistently fell behind on code enforcement.” He noted the need for code enforcement has dropped dramatically, McCraight said, following Sheetz entering the marketplace. He said he believes the competition Sheetz offers is a motivating factor in that drop.

“Because now there’s competition. And competition makes everyone better. Being home to the largest international airport in Michigan, Romulus is the first impression for more than 30 million travelers annually. I’d say that makes us the “Gateway to Michigan,” and we need to raise the level of expectations from our community stakeholders. In short, we must do better. Sheetz has definitely supported that initiative,” McCraight said in his letter.

“From Day One, the Sheetz team said what they meant and did what they said. They didn’t just show up with a shovel and a site plan, they showed up with a vision that aligned with ours. Romulus has invested years of hard work into becoming a hub for innovation and forward-thinking growth — where economic development goes hand-in-hand with strong community values. Today, I’m proud to say that Sheetz has helped redefine what’s possible here. We call it the “Sheetz Effect,” a ripple of positive impact that’s energized nearly every part of our local economy.

“I know that in some places, Sheetz has been met with resistance. There have been unsubstantiated claims of crime, pollution and blight associated with the chain, spread by their competition. But we have witnessed the exact opposite on their site in Romulus. Their site is always clean, and their staff has always been great with customer service.

And their management team has always been very responsive and continues to build their relationship with the city, even after they received their certificate of occupancy. That hasn’t always been the case with other stakeholders.

“If you’re a mayor, city councilmember, planning commissioner, or a city manager in southeast Michigan wondering whether Sheetz is the right fit, I suggest you “get the facts,” not listen to false rumors spread by their competition. It may enhance your community. It certainly has ours.

“Sheetz has validated what we’re doing in Romulus, and they’ve made it easier for us to say to the next great partner: “Come partner and grow with Romulus; We are the ‘Gateway to Michigan!’”
